AT LAST GREAT NECK NEED NOT FEAR FIRE

Volunteers Receive the Vigilant, Latest in Automobile Fire Trucks.

NO NEED FOR HASTE NOW

Lindsay Dennison Says Even the Hose, Heretofore Forgotten, Works Itself.

That cacophonous rumble which started finally gave in and signed. yesterday afternoon at the Manhattan end of the Queensboro Bridge and after travsilling over the river zigzagged eastward up Long Island wasn't caused by any thing more than Great Neck's new red devil Vigilant Engine and Hook and adder. Or, rather, it wasn't caused by ything more than the red devil and those who rode on his back.

Lest it be not known (this is a very serious piece of prose), Great Neck has a volunteer fire brigade which claims the distinction of never having arrived at a fire until all danger was past and the blaze extinguished by lack of more ma-blaze extinguished by lack of more material on which to feed.

There have been long discussions, led by such of the brigade's heroes as W. K. Vanderbilt and E. R. Chapman, as to whether or not this remarkable record for "safety first" was due to a habit of all the volunteers of shaving before they started of the batter of the started off with hat, cane, and spats to answer the

In a word, since Great Neck has its new fire engine, there will be scarcely any necessity at all for the volunteers to hurry to a fire. When they hear the fire gong they will be able to get lefsurely out of bed and stroll off in the direction of the fire, secure in the knowledge that it will probably be out when they arrive.

they arrive.

The volunteers were careful to explain yesterday that the Vigilant, for such is the new engine's name, could have made the trip from Manhattan to Great Neck by itself. But there were certain reasons which led a dozen of the volunteers to welcome it at the Queensboro Pridge.

As was befitting, a band consisting of a violin, a slip horn, a flute and a tuba Collector Fined $5 for Flirting at played beneath the Stars and Stripes a the engine house as the Vigilant rumbled up and came to a stop, while Great Neck

Workmen's compensation will be discussed to-morrow afternoon in the Woolworth Building at conference and exhibit under the auspices of the Industrial League. Henry C. Hunter, secretary of the National Metal Trades Association, will be chairman. Short speeches by C. L. Senior, assistant chief examiner in charge of workmen's compensation, New York of workmen's compensation, New York State Department of Insurance; P. Tecumser Sherman, former Commissioner ser Sherman, former Commissioner of La-bor; Albert W. Whitney of the Work-men's Compensation Service Bureau, and Thompson S. Sampson of the American Mutual Compensation Insurance Com-pany, will precede a report by William C. Archer, secretary of the Industrial Commission of Ohio, on "The Ohio Plan."

Many leading insurance representatives, large employers and lawyers will attend the conference, which is planned, to give the public a better understanding of the workmen's compensation bill, which goes into effect in this State on July 1.

PIERCE OIL CO. FIGHTS TEXAS.

Brings an Action to Prove Right to Enter Business There.

AUSTIN, Tex.. May 16.—The Pierce Oil
Corporation, which succeeded to the holdings and business of the Waters-Pierce Oil Company, filed a petition to-day for a writ of mandamus in the State Supreme Court against Secretary of State Weinert to compel him to issue it a permit to do business in Texas. The case will be heard on its merits by the court next week.

It is alleged by Attorney-General Looney and Secretary Weinert that the Pierce Oil Corporation is in fact the Waters-Pierce Oil Company under a new name and that the injunction which was issued a few years ago against the latter company, ousting it from Texas and perpetually restrain-ing it from Texas and perpetually restraining it from resuming business in this State, applies to the new concern.

Make Concessions and Sign Papers but Woman Keeps Letters,

CAMBRIDGE, Md., May 16.—The differences between the Rev. Alfred Race, until recently rector of Christ Protestant Episcopal Church, and his wife, which have stirred church circles, were apparently settled this afternoon when the protester and his wife stoned an agreeminister and his wife signed an agree-ment in which they made concessions and promised to live together again.

Further there was a rival corps of firemen in Great Neck's neighborhood who on various occasions did arrive at fires too late to be of any use, but nevertheless with their hose reel.

So the Vigitants held meetings every Saturday night at John Carroll's, and sometimes on midweek nights, and finally decided that the only solution was to buy the latest model of combination automobile hose cart, hook and ladder and chemical engine.

The new fire engine is, in fact, so late a greatly that it almost operates itself.

The attachment was granted on the application of Hiram M. Burton, who got a judgment for $15,472 against Addicks on a note in March, 1910. An execution was returned unsatisfied. ing-New Fashions for May Queens.

The May party season opened in Central Park yesterday with clear skies and warm sunshine that compensated for the disap-pointment of the two previous Saturdays, when rainy weather prevented the use of the lawns. The ground was dry and warm and the grass was thick and velvety for the rolling and tumbling children. Thirty-five parties were scattered throughout the park upon the lawns of the Sheep Green, Cherry Hill, the East Green, Peacock Lawn and the North Meadow. From the number of permits issued it was estimated that about 15,000 children en-estimated that about 15,000 children en-gaged in the frolics.

The largest May party was that of the John Hall Memorial Sunday School at 342 East Sixty-third street, a branch of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church. There were 750 boys and girls and their grown up relatives. Blue eyed Helen Trinka, 8 years old, of 336 East Seventy-first street, was elected queen of the May.

The fashions of the May queens have changed in this progressive age; the long, lowing robe is out of date this year. Queen Helen's white dress, decorated with paper roses, only reached to her knees.

There were ten parties on the Sheep Green. The New York Caledonian Club sent a large number of children and women. Camp chairs were brought along for the women. Many of the boys were dressed in the Highland kilt. On the same green was an outing of negro children from San Juan Hill on the West Side.

For most of the day there were few policemen in the park, owing to the police parade outside. Some rowdy acts were started by young men not connected with the May parties they attempted to help themselves to the food and other things belonging to the children. The men looking after the youngsters drove the rowdies away. Tennis playing on the courts on the Sheep

"The Big Store" Appears Under Its Owner's Name

This business will hereafter be conducted under a new title-the name of its long-time chief owner, J. B. Greenhut. This elimination of all other names merely reflects a fact that is more than twelve years old.

'n 1902 the original owners of "The Big Store" sold the controlling interest in it to Captain Greenhut, who has been its controlling owner and active head ever since. It is no light matter to change the name of an established and extended business, and, for reasons which then seemed good, the names of the original owners were continued in the title of the concern, although they themselves passed out of it and have had utterly no part in it for a dozen years.

Since 1902 this has been a Greenhut business conducted on Greenhut principles by a Greenhut organization. Its growth and prosperity under its Greenhut management are familiar to everybody. In volume of business it must be counted among the five greatest retail stores of the country, while in public confidence it stands second to no store in the

The name of Greenhut was added to its original business title several years ago. The time has now come when it is advisable to drop the old name entirely—when the business may be conducted under the name of the man who has made it what it is.

Henceforth, therefore, its legal title will be THE J. B. GREENHUT COMPANY (Formerly Greenhut-Siegel Cooper Co. Inc.). But it will always be "The Big Store" as you have known it—the same comfortable, homelike, convenient and reliable place—made better and more helpful with every month that passes.
